Dear Parishioners,

Jesus' Encounter with Zacchaeus

"...Jesus looked up and said,

'Zacchaeus, come down quickly, for today I must stay at your house' "(Luke 19: 5).

Zacchaeus had come in order to see what kind of person Jesus was. By the end of the day he had got a lot more than he bargained for or hoped for. Instead of getting a mere passing glimpse of Jesus, he had a face-to-face, and a heart-to-heart encounter with him. He not only discovered what Jesus looked like but also what his heart was like. And to know the heart of Jesus was to know the possibilities of his own heart too. Zacchaeus liked what he discovered about Jesus; and he also liked what he discovered about himself. He experienced the 'melting of the heart'. His heart came to life like a desert landscape after a rainfall.

Zacchaeus' conversion was immediate, visible, and permanent. It was not, however, just an intellectual conversion. He had a change of heart. From a Gospel viewpoint this is the most important conversion of all. It is, perhaps, harder to achieve than an intellectual conversion, and most certainly more far-reaching in its consequences. Fear cannot produce this kind of conversion. Only an encounter with love can.

The central issue of human beings is how we can have a change of heart and learn to love one another. There has to be a touching, a softening, a moving of the heart, which leads to an opening of the heart, and finally to a sharing of the heart's riches. A harsh approach causes the heart to close and harden. A kind approach, such as Jesus adopted with Zacchaeus, causes the heart to soften and open. Nothing but the heart can change the heart.

Treat a man as he is, and he will become worse; treat him as he ought to be, or as
He aspires to be, and he will become better, because our aspirations are the most
Real part of us (Goethe)

Jesus saw that Zacchaeus' wrongdoing was not the whole of him, and that he had within him the possibility of goodness. Jesus' vision of Zacchaeus affected the way Zacchaeus saw himself. Goodness evokes goodness and Zacchaeus' conversion was a conversion to goodness. All of us stand in need of such a conversion. Each of us has the capacity that Zacchaeus had, though it may be hidden or unexpressed. All of us stand in need of someone to believe in us and so offer that window of opportunity to reach out for the dream that God has about/for each of us.

"Zacchaeus wasn't perfect: he was unfinished, scattered and incomplete. But God's Spirit had nudged him to leave his home that day and become a seeker. He thought he was just going to see Jesus with his eyes. But a lot more happened to him because Jesus saw Zacchaeus' hunger and entered his life and the life of his family. So we ask ourselves: Have you, like Zacchaeus, ever had a longing that sent you out on a spiritual quest? How does that quest affect your life now?" (Fr. Jude Siciliano, O.P)
