Dear parishioners,

Praying the Mass Anew The New Translation of The Roman Missal and Our Actual Participation at Mass

The Readings:

Proclaiming, hearing, and meditating on God's Word

The General Instruction of the Roman Missal (GIRM) refers to two main parts of Mass that are “so closely interconnected that they form but one single act of worship:” the Liturgy of the Word and the Liturgy of the Eucharist. The biblical readings with the Liturgy of the Word are understood as one of the more important elements of each Mass. These readings are to be proclaimed well and listened to with reverence. Hence, while there are no changes in the people's responses to the readings, it is fitting to devote a column specifically to the readings, that all might participate more fully and actively in this part of the Mass.

On Sundays, there are two passages proclaimed by one or two readers. Usually, the first reading comes from the Old Testament, while the second reading comes from one of the “letters” in the New Testament. During the Easter Season, the first reading comes from the Acts of the Apostles, while the second remains as a passage of a New Testament letter. The Responsorial Psalm that is placed between the readings and is typically sung serves the first reading, emphasizing in its words and the response a particular meaning or theme of the first reading, promoting deeper meditation upon God's Word.

The Gospel passage comes as the peak of the Liturgy of the Word, with Christ himself speaking directly to us. Accordingly, the Gospel passage is paid the highest reverence. The proclamation of the Gospel is reserved to the clergy, who through the sacrament of Holy Orders, have been configured to Christ. All stand and turn toward the deacon or priest proclaiming the Gospel as an expression of their reverence and attentive listening.

The Task of the Reader

When it comes to proclaiming the biblical readings at Mass, a first note of importance from the GIRM is that the reading of the biblical readings is termed “ministerial” and not “presidential.” In other words, he who “presides” over the assembly, leading them in the offering of the sacrifice is not meant to read the readings. Rather, one (or two) of the faithful carry out this task in service of the priest and the people. The ministry of “lector” that all men who are preparing for Holy Orders are to receive during their time of preparation for ordination more officially confers the task of proclaiming Scripture readings on those who receive it. However, in almost all parishes, those who read are not recipients of this ministry. Rather, the readers are given this responsibility simply by proper training to proclaim the readings at Mass and by their designation as readers.

To be a reader at Mass carries particular responsibilities. Of great importance is the preparation on the part of the reader prior to Mass. Biblical passages are of several styles of writing: including narrative passages, prophecy, poetry, dialogue, and didactic writings (that is, teaching). Each style requires different voice inflection, proper awareness of those being addressed in the text itself by the human author, along with the awareness of those in the present moment of proclamation. In so many words, readers should proclaim each passage as if they were speaking on behalf of the author, not as simply reading the words on the page. The reader should always strive to proclaim each passage in order to most properly convey the intended meaning. Likewise, the pace with which one reads should be such that it allows for the proper nature of the writing style be clearly communicated. All of these details, along with seeking to communicate the proper emotion of the reading, are facilitated by sound preparation.

The Participation of the People

When the readings are proclaimed well, the participation of the people through meditation on the spoken word becomes more realistic. Such meditation allows the people to be led to a deeper personal relationship with God. Just as the reader must proclaim the text according to the intent of the author, so the hearer must listen well, so that the author's true message may be heard and meditated upon.

Often, parishes will have the readings available in the little books that people in the pews often use for Mass called “missalettes.” While missalettes serve a good purpose to familiarize the people with the readings and prayers, full participation in the liturgy by the faithful means listening well to the readings without relying on a written text. Challenging though it may be, all are encouraged to practice listening to the readings, without looking on in the book – that the spoken word itself may become our point of focus, and whatever particular message strikes at our heart may be that which we truly meditate upon (even if it is only one word or phrase). In this way, participating fully in the readings, our “Thanks be to God” will resound with a deeper appreciation for God working in our life.

Prayer Hot Line

Did you know...that there is a group of people who are praying for parishioners who have requested prayer for any number of reasons...sickness, surgery, and other trials that they may have been asked to bear. In addition to the Parish Prayer Corner/Sick List, which is in the bulletin, this group of people pray for those who perhaps have a more urgent need for prayer...not wanting to wait for the next bulletin. Prayer carries us through our difficulties, just as the footprints in the sand disappeared...so we are carried...we are all called to pray and help in this beautiful ministry of carrying our brothers and sisters.

Please call the office (324-5811) if there is an urgent need for prayer or perhaps you would prefer not to have your name in the bulletin, and we will add you to the Prayer Hot Line. We are here to help.

Come, Pray the Rosary Together at St. Ann's

This daily meeting for the Rosary takes place in the Marian Chapel after the 5:15pm. Mass and takes about 20-25 minutes. Come, pray under the patronage of St. Joseph, pillar of families and patron of a holy and happy death.

What kind of parish will thrive in the 21st. Century? How can we grow as vibrant communities of liturgy, fellowship, and service?

Jack Jezreel, founder of JustFaith Ministries, www.justfaith.org will address these important questions on Wednesday, November 30th. at 7:00pm. “Gathered and Sent: A New Vision for Parishes in the 21st. Century”

Description - The Gospels, the legacy of holy witnesses, and Vatican II speak of a Church that, at its best, gathers and sends. While this fundamental dimension of our faith tradition has struggled to see full expression in the local parish, the future of American Catholicism holds some exciting and promising prospects IF we are willing to renew the possibilities of parish purpose and structure.

Sponsored by St. Bernard’s School of Theology and Ministry and Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Rochester.

Location: St. Bernard’s 120 French Road, Rochester, 14618 and videoconferenced to Catholic Charities, 215 E. Church Street, Elmira, St. Mary of the Lake, 905 Decatur Street, Watkins Glen, St. Ann School, 27 Erie Avenue, Hornell.

 There is a strict RSVP date of November 28th. Faith First for Families

Sunday Gospel Reflections for November 20, 2011

Matthew - 25:31-46

Gospel Summary - On this final Sunday of the Church year, the feast of Christ the King, we learn most definitely how our lives will be measured. They will be measured by the love we show. Whenever we offer a drink of water to the thirsty, food to the hungry, clothing to the naked, or whenever we visit the sick or imprisoned, or take in the stranger, we show our love to God. Through our actions toward the poor, vulnerable, estranged and discouraged we show our love of God. If we ignore these people, we also ignore God.

Reflection for Families - It is easy to see the meaning of this gospel through our actions toward our children. Never in true thirst or hunger would we deny them. If they were sick or cold we would take care of them ourselves or see to it that someone helped us. It’s taking this gospel to the next level that will help our children see the meaning of love through our example. Not only will they witness love through our loving actions toward others, but there will be many opportunities along the way to have our children share in these actions of love.

Bringing the Gospel into your Family - Through our parishes, schools, and communities, there are a number of opportunities for adults to demonstrate God’s love - not through some sense of obligation, but from a genuine love of others. Most of these opportunities allow for the whole family to participate. For example, adults may make communion calls to someone who is homebound. Often these folks eagerly welcome the sight of a child or if that’s not possible, children can make care cards to be delivered at the call. Think of one way, as a family, you might carry out at least one of the actions of the gospel.

Discussion Starters

- ◆ There was a time I recall being moved completely by love to help another person when...
- ◆ The hardest part about this gospel passage for me is...
- ◆ I was one of “the least” and someone helped me out of love. I remember feeling...
