The Sacraments

From the Catechism of the Catholic Church, Simplified

The Seven Sacraments (1113)

The Church has seven sacraments: Baptism, Confirmation, Eucharist, Penance, Anointing of the Sick, Holy Orders and Matrimony. First, we will discuss what is common in their doctrinal aspects, then what is common in their celebration, and finally, what is distinctive about each sacrament.

All Initiated by Christ (1114-1116)

The Council of Trent, “adhering to the teaching of Scripture, to the Apostolic Traditions and to the consensus of the Fathers,” professed that “the sacraments of the new law were... all instituted by Jesus Christ, our Lord.”

Jesus’ words and actions had saving power and anticipated the power of his death and Resurrection. These powerful mysteries are now dispensed in the Church’s sacraments. “What was visible in our Savior has passed over into his mysteries” (Pope Leo the Great).

The Church’s Treasures (1117-1118)

Through the Spirit, who guides “to all truth” (Jn 16:14), the Church has gradually recognized Christ’s treasures and has seen that, among her liturgical celebrations, there are seven (in the strict sense) that are sacraments instituted by Christ.

These sacraments are “by the Church” because she is the sacrament of Christ’s actions. They are “for the Church” because they manifest and communicate to men the mystery of God’s communion.

The Baptized and the Ordained (1119-1120)

In the sacraments, the Church acts with Christ as “an organically structured priestly community.” Through Baptism and Confirmation, people are enabled to celebrate the liturgy. Those who have received Holy Orders are appointed to “nourish the Church... in the name of Christ.”

The ministerial priesthood serves the baptismal priesthood by guaranteeing that it is really Christ who acts in the sacraments. The ministerial priesthood is the sacramental bond which links the liturgical action to the apostles' actions and, through them, to Christ's words and actions.

The Seal of Three Sacraments (I 121)

These three sacraments (Baptism, Confirmation, and Holy Orders) bestow a "character" or seal which is indelible, remaining forever. By this seal the person is configured with Christ according to the different states in the Church. This seal disposes for grace, guarantees divine protection, and calls the person to worship and service in the Church. These three sacraments can never be repeated.

Sacraments of Faith and Salvation

Evangelizing Implies Sacraments (I 122)

Christ sent his apostles to all nations to preach "repentance and forgiveness of sins" (Lk 24:47). They were to baptize everyone who believed (Mt 28:19). Therefore, this mission to baptize (sacramental ministry) is implied in the mission to evangelize. "The preaching of the Word is required for sacramental ministry because the sacraments are sacraments of faith, drawing their origin and nourishment from the Word" (Second Vatican Council).

Instructed in Faith (I 123-I 124)

Besides sanctifying the faithful and giving praise to God, the sacraments instruct. They are "sacraments of faith" because they presuppose faith and nourish it.

The person's faith is preceded by the Church's faith (received from the apostles). Because the Church "prays according to its beliefs" the liturgy is a constitutive element of the Church's living Tradition.

Not to Be Changed (I 125-I 126)

No minister or community can modify a sacramental rite. Even the Church's supreme authority cannot act arbitrarily and can change the liturgy only in the obedience of faith. Because the sacraments express the faith of the Church, they are an essential criteria of ecumenical dialogue.

Sending the Spirit "Ex Opere Operato" (I 127-I 129)

If celebrated worthily in faith, the sacraments bestow the grace signified because Christ himself is at work. In each sacrament, the Father sends the Spirit, who (like a fire) transforms whatever comes under his power.

The Church calls this power of the sacrament "ex opere operato" (just by the action being accomplished). This power comes from God, "not from the minister nor the recipient" (St. Thomas Aquinas). Christ and his Spirit act independently of the personal holiness of the minister (although the results do depend on the recipient's dispositions).

The sacraments are necessary for salvation (Council of Trent). Each bestows by a special "sacramental grace", by which the Spirit transforms the recipients.

Prefiguring Eternal Glory (I 130)

The Church will celebrate these sacraments until the Lord comes, because the Spirit groans for Christ's return (I Cor 16:22). In the sacraments, the Church has already received a guarantee of heaven even while "awaiting the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus" (Titus 1:13). "A sacrament commemorates what precedes it (Christ's passion), demonstrates what the passion accomplished (grace), and prefigures what is pledged (future glory)" (St. Thomas Aquinas).

Vocation View for the 5th. Sunday of Ordinary Time

Isaiah felt insignificant and unworthy to do God’s work, yet God reached out to him with love and mercy. When God asked, “Whom shall I send?” Isaiah was able to respond, “send me!”, and became one of the greatest prophets of the Old Testament.

After a night of fishing with nothing to show for it, in our New Testament reading, Simon doubted his ability as a fisherman. But, he obeyed Jesus’ command to “Put out into the deep water and lower your nets for a catch.” When the nets were filled to capacity, Simon expressed his sorrow for having doubted. Jesus responded with love and mercy and invited Simon and his partners to follow him. We, too, may not feel worthy to do God’s work, but God knows our gifts and abilities and invites us anyway. Have the courage and the trust to respond to that invitation. Contact the Office of Vocation Awareness at 585-461-2890, www.dor.org/Vocations, or vocations@dor.org.
